

James Eggers.

I am a 16 year old student in Transition Year, currently attending St. Michael's College School in Dublin. I have Dual UK/Ireland Citizenship.

Skills

- I am an experienced computer programmer. Currently, I am well able to program in PHP, C, Python, XHTML + CSS and Javascript/JQuery, Objective-C, Ruby and ASP. I have created many applications using the above languages, most notably Firrus, which I built to help prevent Plagiarism (firrus.com).
- I am an experienced web designer. I have designed and built many websites for clients such as Linden Landscapes Ltd. and Living Designs Ltd. I mostly use (X)HTML + CSS, Javascript and PHP to build websites. I also have experience with designing Wordpress themes and Plugins. I also have experience designing Tumblr themes.

Achievements

- My project "Using Twitter to understand the emotional state of people living in Ireland." won first place in it's category in the Technology Section of the BT Young Scientist and Technology Exhibition in 2011. This project received huge media attention and was broadcasted nationally on TV and Radio by RTÉ, TV3, TG4 and Newstalk. The Project also recieved a lot of praise from websites on the internet.
- I attained 10 Honors in the Junior Cert in 2010. I got an A in Honors Maths, Honors Science, Honors History and CSPE.
- Have attained the highest possible level in Sailing. Have won various sailing events around Ireland. In 2009, I won the McCarthy Cup Trophy in the September Series Racing Competition. I also came first in the National Yacht Club Regatta, the Royal St. George Yacht Club Regatta and came third in the Royal Irish Yacht Club Regatta. I am also fully qualified to drive motor boats.
- Achieved a Distinction in a Basic Fist Aid Course.

Work Experience

- Volunteering at Camara for a year, helping to deploy recycled computers to schools in Africa. Also did work experience at Camara during Transition Year.
- Irish Life Investment Managers Information Technology Department. Developed a new software to aid workers to look after computer systems.

Education
